Rules On Malfunctions

A malfunction is the failure of the pistol or ammunition to function properly.

A competitor with a malfunction may complete a series once when a malfunction occurs during the timed and rapid-fire strings.

Malfunctions in Slow-Fire Series

If a competitor has a malfunction during a slow-fire series, they may clear the malfunction and continue firing. They may load additional rounds as necessary to complete the series.

If clearing the malfunction or repairing or replacing a pistol requires additional time, the competitor must notify the Range Officer. After examining the pistol, the Range Officer may award extra time equal to the time required to clear the malfunction or, if additional time is required to clear the malfunction, repair the pistol, or replace the pistol, the competitor may be rescheduled on a different relay to complete the series.

Malfunctions in Timed and Rapid-Fire Series

If a competitor has a malfunction during a timed or rapid-fire series and wishes to claim a malfunction, they must lower the pistol to the "Ready" position and raise their non-shooting arm.

A Range Officer will examine the pistol to determine if the malfunction is allowable or non-allowable.

Failures due to improper manual operation of the pistol by the competitor are non-allowable malfunctions.

If the competitor attempts to clear a malfunction, the malfunction is nonallowable.

If the malfunction was on the first shot and there is no round in the pistol chamber, the malfunction is non-allowable (the competitor is responsible for properly loading the pistol).

If the malfunction is allowable, the series may be refired.

Refires of allowable malfunctions in timed or rapid-fire series will be fired as refire series.

In a refire series, the competitor must load and fire five rounds. Any shots not fired in the refire series due to another malfunction or failure to fire must be scored as misses

The target with the original (incomplete) and refire series will be scored by counting the ten (10) lowest value shots, including any unfired shots on the refire series.

If a competitor is not allowed to claim a refire and/or wishes to clear a malfunction and continue firing within the time limit, they may do so; they may load additional rounds as necessary.
